When in Rome...

R. CHAST

“You have a choice of three-bean salad or lethal injection.”

There is a broader point: Internet companies trade at such high prices because they are supposed to be completely different from ordinary firms, so standard methods of valuation, such as comparing a firm's stock price with its earnings, don't apply. (Before last week, A.O.L. had a stock-market capitalization almost twice that of Time Warner, despite the fact that its revenues are only a sixth as large.) But in the wake of the merger announcement, the degree of monopoly power they possess—not by whether they have .com after their name. Since A.O.L.-Time Warner would have many popular products and a lot of market power, its stock would trade at a premium, fetching maybe as much as twenty times the amount of cash that the company generates each year. (Until recently, ten times cash flow was considered a high rating for a media company.) According to the companies' own projections, a combined A.O.L.-Time Warner could throw off as much as ten billion dollars of cash a year, implying a market capitalization of two hundred billion dollars—about what A.O.L. alone was valued at before the merger announcement.

Arithmetic like this has started to addle even the most bullish Wall Street savants. The torment will surely increase, especially if Alan Greenspan (the Banquo's Ghost at the A.O.L.-Time Warner party)

"I don't think this merger between the text and the cartoons is working out."

"This one's for not asking, and this one's for not telling."

THE ORIGINS OF EVERYTHING

The Big Soufflé Theory

First, the universe puffs up nicely. Then the whole thing caves in and becomes a gross mess.

The Faux-Pas Theory

A teensy mistake gets made. In trying to fix it, the mistake gets bigger. And so forth.

The 'Fantasticks' Theory

It has always been there. It will always be there. Other than that, we know nothing.

ANIMAL CITY (5 OF 5)

“Look, call it denial if you like, but I think what goes on in my personal life is none of my own damn business.”

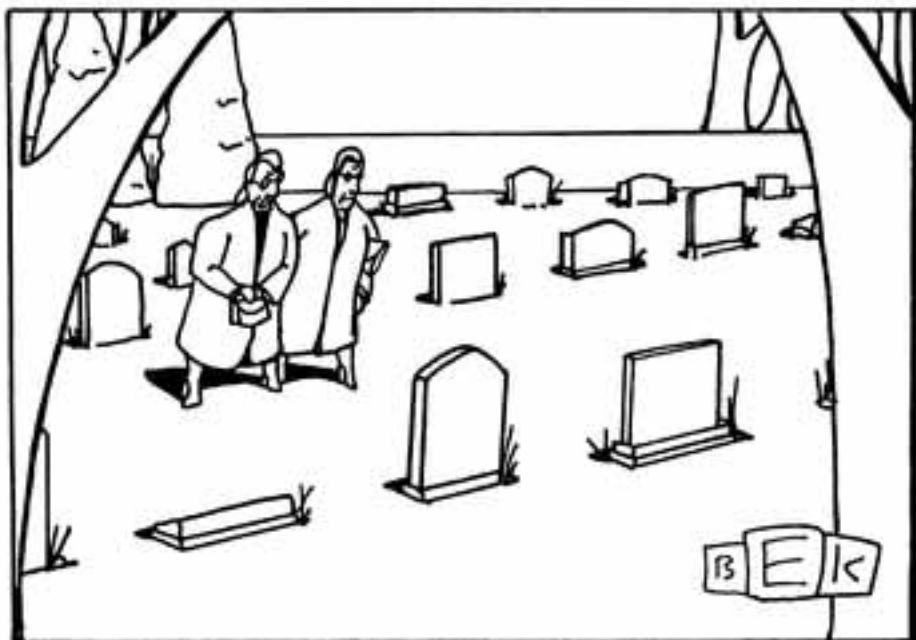

"It's Doris Kearns Goodwin. Is there anything we'd like to know about the Presidency?"

"I use broccoli rabe as a litmus test."

"When I grow up, I want to work with the affluent."

"He did it my way."

"You just self-deprecated yourself right out of a job."

"Sure, we can have dinner. But only if your breasts sign a non-compete clause."

“The only solution I can see is to hold a series of long and costly hearings in order to put off finding a solution.”

"He's playing very hard to get—he's got a restraining order."

"I liked recess a lot better before the safety helmets."

"Thursdays and Saturdays, it's glassblowing, Mondays and Wednesdays it's Morris dancing!"

“Are we looking more for target shooting, or, like, closure?”

“Once, I tried to change the laces, and the Landmarks Commission came down on me like a ton of bricks.”

“Enemies, yes, but doesn’t your moat also keep out love?”

COMING SOONER THAN YOU THINK

R. Chast

PUBLIC TV'S "REALITY" SHOWS

"It's just Mayor Giuliani asking us to have a nice day."

"She's got money and he's a 'poet.'"

"Tell me what you think of the menu. I wrote it."

"He's just doing that to get attention."

“My goal is to die before there’s a technology breakthrough that forces me to live to a hundred and thirty.”

"I'm confused now. Was Shakespeare somebody else or was somebody else Shakespeare?"

“Mommy, Becky says she’s not going to put me in her memoirs!”

Charles Barsotti

"Fine, but until you chop off my head you will do what I say."

BEHIND CLOSED DOORS

"I never should have tried to take my accounting to the next level."

"I've been hearing nothing but good things about you."

"Your book stinks—we want to publish it."

"We're working on reading readiness."

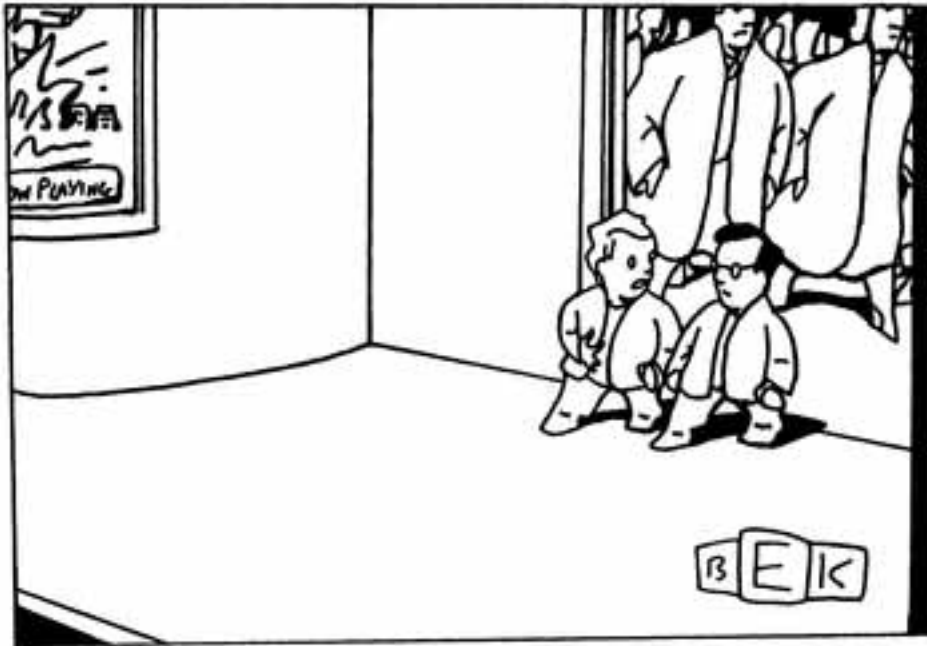

“Copywriting is too ‘writing.’”

You tell him that you find the flag offensive.

"I want to get married and start a family with you—although God knows who I'll want to finish it with."

"I thought it had a lot to say about evil villains who want to take over the world."

“First, they take my domain, then they take my domain name.”

“Lucy tells me you’re a writer. I’m no stranger to self-delusion myself.”

"Oh, goody. More reality-based crap."

"You might want to do a rubber-glove count."

"Gruelling as this is, it's not a total-body workout."

“Getting U.S.D.A. approval means a lot to you, doesn’t it?”

“Go ahead. Press one for more options.”

“What ever will we think about now that the genome project is almost complete?”

“What did people do before they could read about the same handful of famous people over and over again?”

EXTREMELY PRACTICAL JOKES

Joy of Health Buzzer

Ask to shake someone's hand. If the person's cholesterol is too high, the device will buzz. A real lifesaver.

Whoopee Posture Cushion

Think about it: why would you say "WHOOPEE!" if you sat on a pillow that made an embarrassing noise?

Trick Vitamin Gum

Tastes just like ordinary gum ~ but it's packed with vitamins!

Dental X-Ray Specs

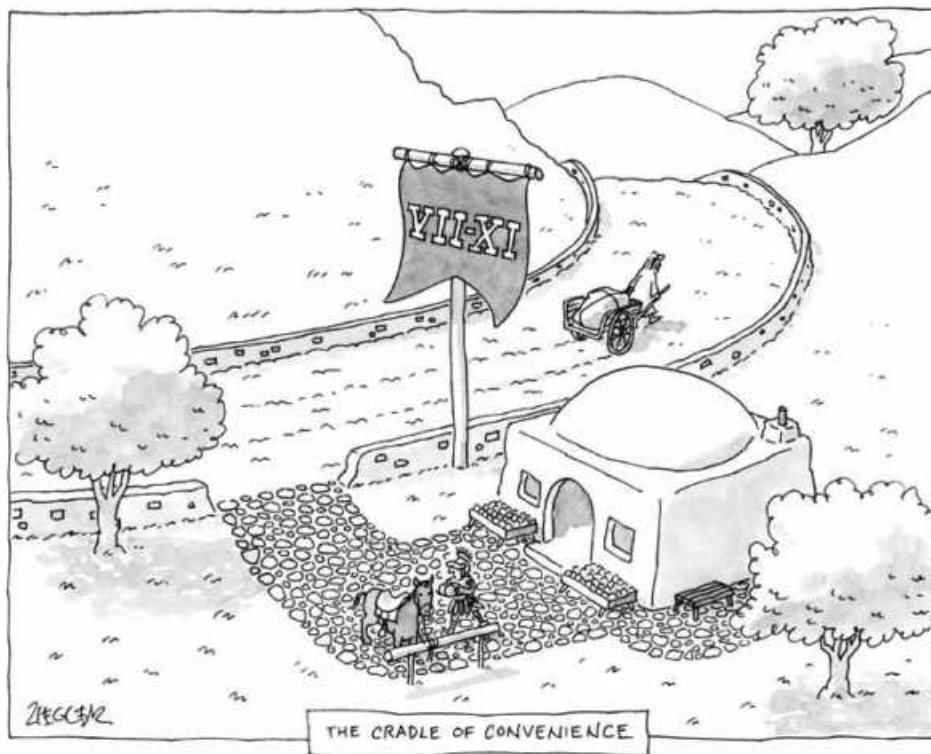

A moment's laughter? Or eternal gratitude? It's your choice.

R. Chur

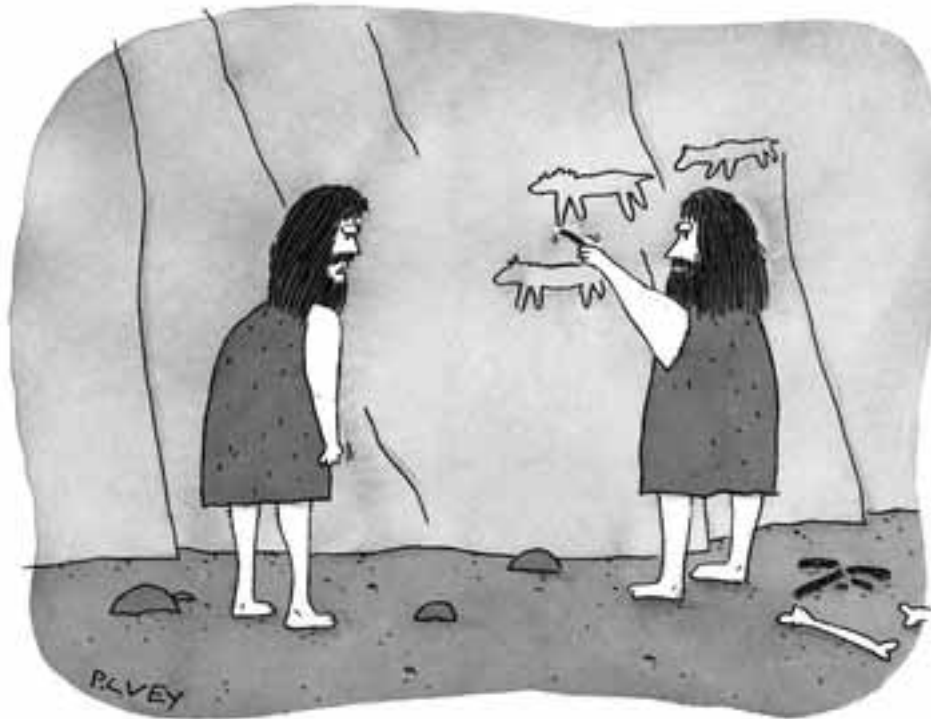

"Turn over and I'll do your back."

"Here they come: Detox and Botox."

"My doctor says you should be drawing more fruits and vegetables."

"I understand the Everest climb used to be quite a chore."

"Yes, sir, fat free—straight from the gym."

"We think it has something to do with your genome."

"Just tell him, in the words of Mike Tyson, I want his heart, I want to eat his children. He'll take the call."

“All right, so I missed your soccer game. But didn’t my assistant send you a lovely fruit basket?”

"I hardly think you'll warrant an invitation-only funeral."

"Damn it, he was a regular."

“Know what I think?”

“Of course.”

"Hey, Johnny—am I nuts, or does this have a hint of oak?"

"You will run away from the circus and join a dot-com."

"Yes, he does speak, but only on condition of anonymity."

"Monkey see, monkey overanalyze."

“Stroll down it alone—I’ll wait here.”

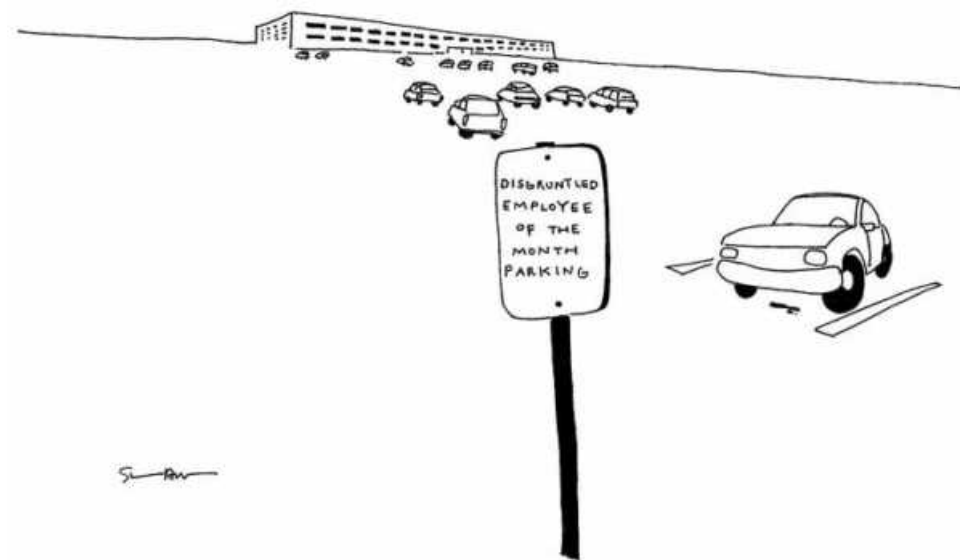

"I can't help feeling a little suspicious. One half is to be run by Bill Gates, and the other half by someone called Gil Bates."

“And if things don’t work out in the big city, Cindy, you can always come back home to me and Mom and our nightmare descent into booze and pills.”

“No, we’re not getting any younger, but why, pray tell, is that such a revelation to us?”

"You're the perfect storm . . . in a teacup."

"I'm cutting you off."

“If it were my car, I’d disconnect it from the battery recharger, take it home, and let it die in its own garage.”

"Totally naked except for my socks. How 'bout yourself?"

“Oh, how I long for the days when you could flip someone the bird and live to tell about it.”

"It's part of His new diversity program."

"Howard's gone on the Tour de France without his bicycle again."

“Our civilization is thousands of years more advanced than yours, yet still sort of kitschy.”

*"I like his earlier work better, particularly the ones I said
I didn't like at the time."*

"My seven-year-old is a prince, but my forty-seven-year-old is a pain in the ass."

“They tell me you’re a nincompoop, Henderson, but you certainly do know how to maintain a crease.”

“Lisa, bring out the Alistair Cheng files and an iced mochaccino, if you will, please.”

“Ask the judge whether we can find the defendant not guilty and still execute him.”

"Two?"

"But I'm not here to talk about bowling."

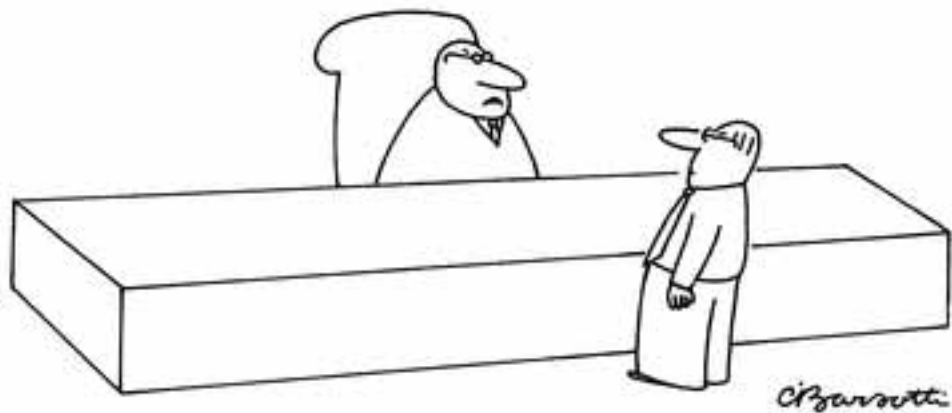

“Mr. Tilson will suffer you gladly now.”

“What would I do differently if you had my life to live over again?”

"Life isn't fair, Cosgrove. Now bring me your wife."

“The editor who turned down the first Harry Potter book, say hello to the publisher who took a pass on Stephen King.”

“And me without my bear spray!”

"I was reading somewhere that people are stupid."

"This is the perfect choice for whatever you're perpetrating."

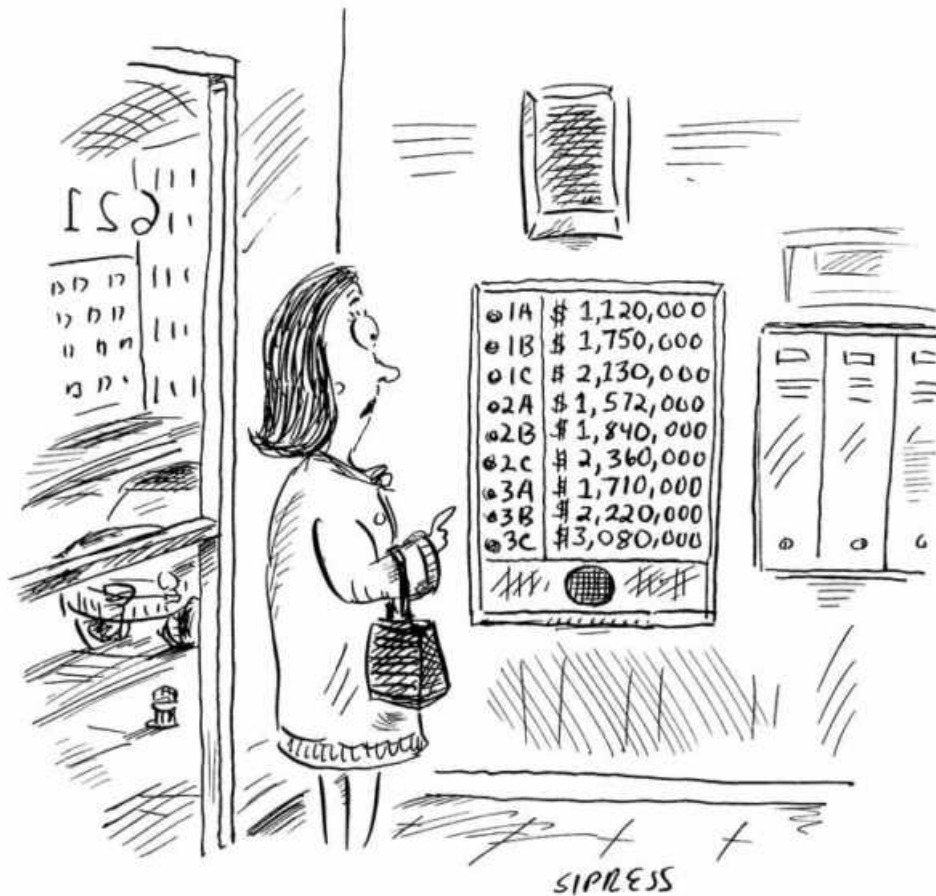

"It's very important that you try very, very hard to remember where you electronically transferred Mommy and Daddy's assets."

"I couldn't agree more—but, then again, I hate even non-lethal injections."

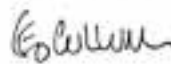

“Frank! Frank, honey, wake up! Your lamp—it’s humongous!”

"Mrs. Jennings, can Billy come out and smoke?"

"I don't bug you about your catnip. Don't bug me about my Martinis."

*“He didn’t want to end it, so I told him
I wanted to get married.”*

"I say it's genetically altered, and I say the hell with it."

"One of us has to draw the line somewhere, and I draw the line at mall sushi."

"I think it was an election year."

"I'm not ordering any lunch, Caswell—I'm going to eat yours."

"Top this, smart guy!"

“He passed away last week. Can I give him a message?”

“Hey, who wants to hear a great single-malt story?”

"Mister Jackson! You know how I feel about sampling."

"You're not standing in the designated protest area."

"Well, I guess this is goodbye!"

“What, may I ask, does landscape have to do with gender?”

"Damn! He took the car keys with him."

"Daddy is fiscally buff."

"I have to hang up now. You just walked through the door."

"This next one is a sad little blues tune about love and pain that I wrote before I started taking Celexa."

“So what if he paid a classmate to do his homework—it was his own allowance.”

"What I'd like is different Presidential candidates, but who the hell you are?"

"Too Jewish?"

"I bark, I get fed. That works for me."

The Incredible Journey

WHY YOUR LETTER TOOK TWO WEEKS TO REACH CONNECTICUT

R. Chow

"Today in school we learned how to recount to ten."

"Good Lord! It's another vote for Al Gore!"

"You have to admit that your chip looks a lot like their chip."

“Please turn off any electronic devices and refrain from using your cell phone as we pass through the darkness and into the light.”

“Whose idea was this damn middle class?”

"Then I wake up, the cheering has stopped, I have three kids, and I work in a cubicle."

“The nurses and technicians did all they could—I just wasn’t into it.”

“See, that’s your problem right there—the roof is mostly sugar.”

"They're not worth the uranium it would take to blow them to hell."

"The Taklaks have a huge fire."

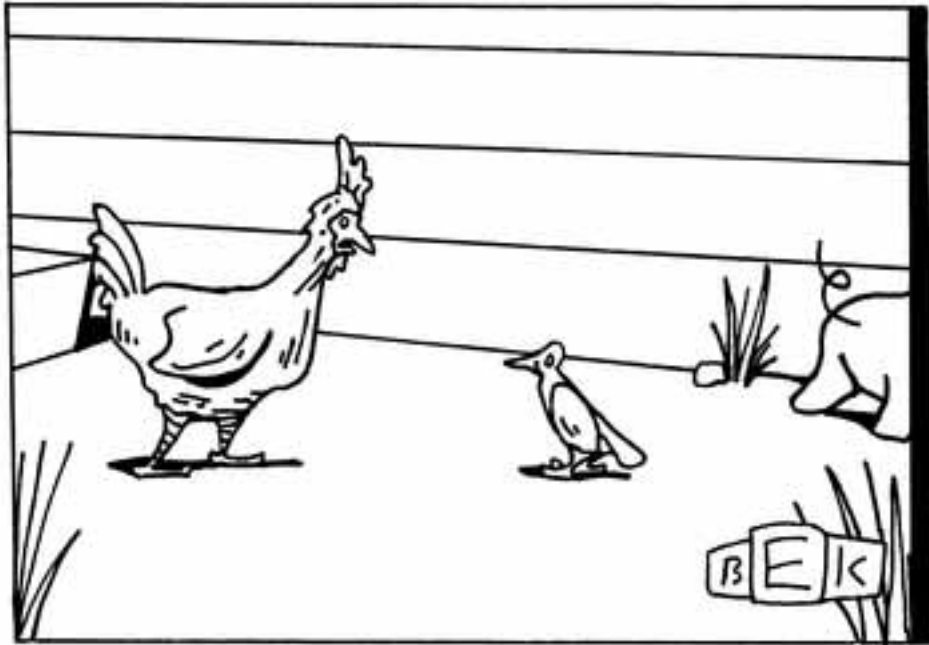

"I know I'm perjuring myself, but I'm trying to make a point!"

"Do you realize we've been together through three versions of Windows?"

“Well, Henri—what’s robust today?”

"Sometimes I get so bored with myself I can barely make it to 'doodle-do.'"

"And another thing. I don't want you visiting my Web site."

"If she wasn't such a bitch, she wouldn't have anything going for her."

"I'd love to join you in saying horrible things about men, but I used to be one myself."

"It's going to be my first protest song, as soon as I can figure out some words that rhyme with 'Napster,' 'Bertelsmann,' and 'service charge.'"

“Every few years, Gordon and the TV get a couple of inches wider.”

“Why can’t you just learn to floss like other men?”

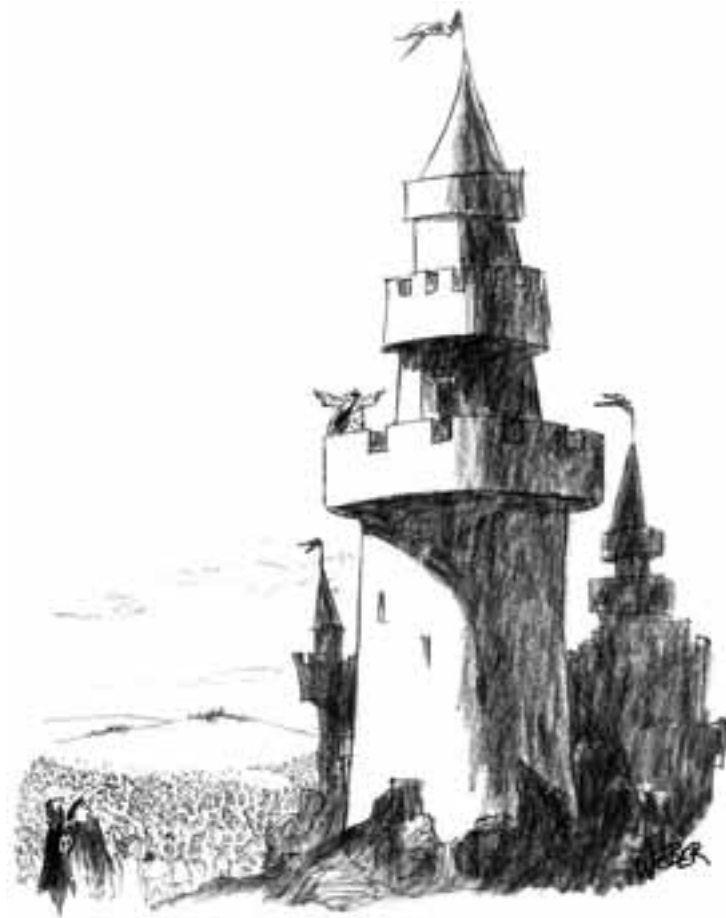

“He turns out not to be Italian—just Italianate.”

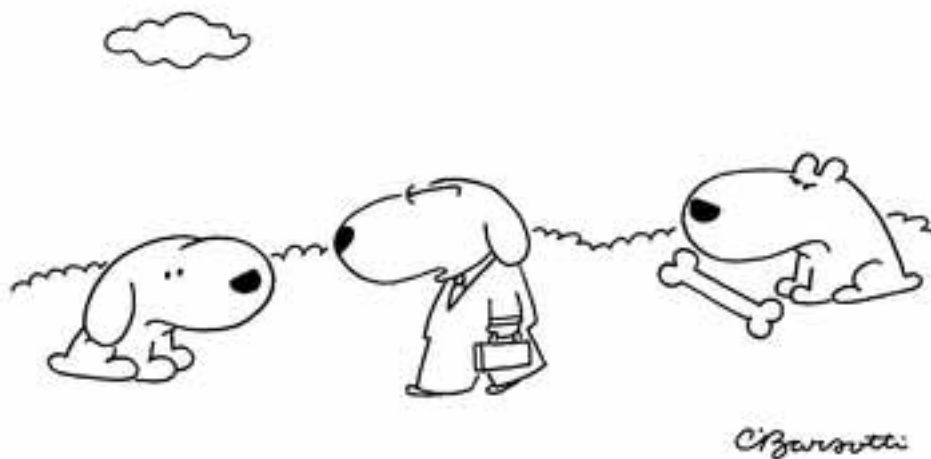

“Let me get this, but keep in mind that you’ll pay for it in other, more subtle ways later on.”

"I always lived vicariously. Why can't I die vicariously?"

“And to think he started in accounting.”

"It's non-negotiable."

“Use a hockey stick—make it look like a game.”

"If you'll have me, I'd like to be your blind spot."

“This is so unexpected—I didn’t even prepare a speech.”

“Hi! I’m Todd, your waiter, and I’d like to think our friendship is more than contextual.”

"You've changed, Howie."

THANK-YOU CARDS FOR RALPH NADER

Yosemite's a shopping mall,
The desert isn't there at all.
Alaska's an amusement park -
I guess you really made your mark.

Thanks a lot, jerk.

What is your problem?
Why did you run?
If it weren't for you,
Gore would have won.

Nice work, fella.

There's no doubt about it:
Your brain is first-rate.
Too bad that this wasn't
A high-school debate.

Hope you're happy now, twit.

When everyone can buy a gun
Without too much ado,
A few will say, "Who paved the way?"
And I will think of you.

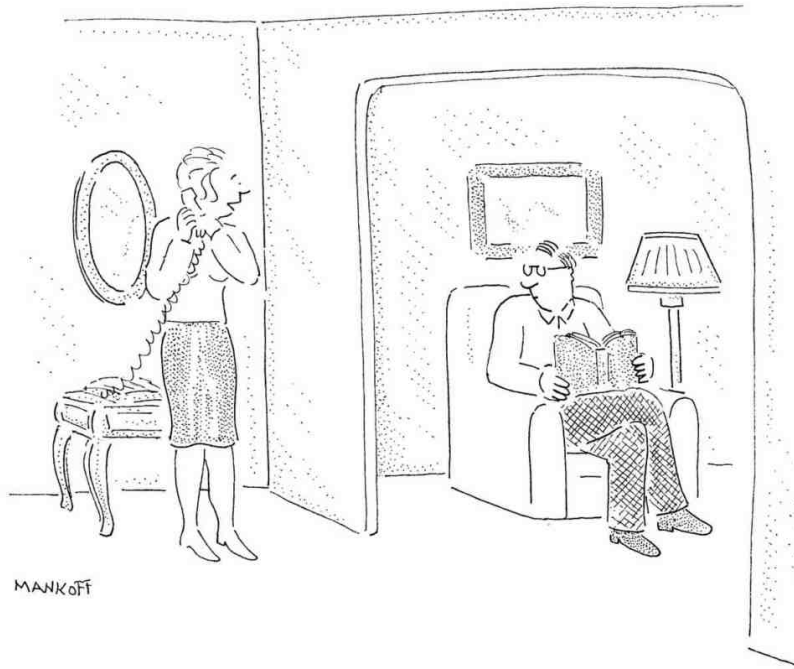

Way to go, pal.

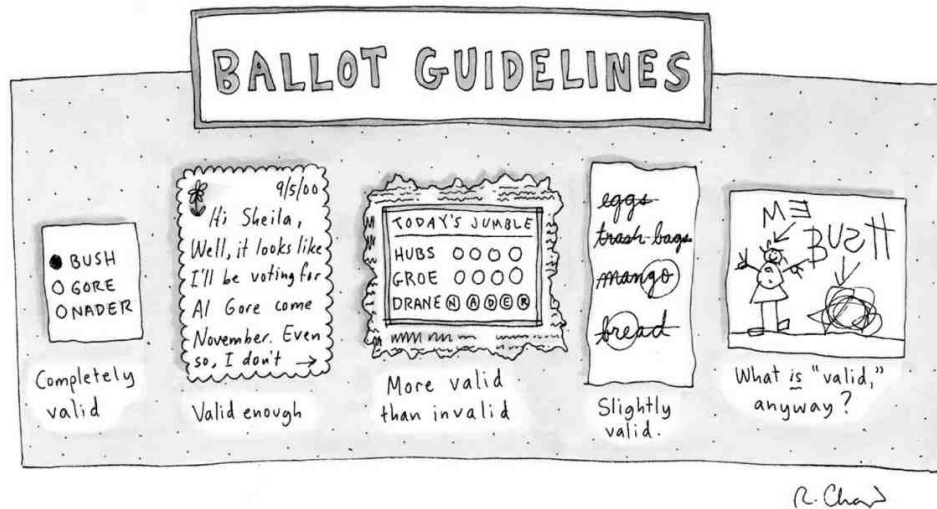

Once I was one of your ardent defenders -
If only you'd stuck with rating blenders.

You the man, Mr. N.

“Are we interested in a meticulously detailed, genuine silver coin, issued and authenticated by the Franklin Mint, honoring whichever schmuck wins?”

"Things were done very differently on the farm when I was your age, Kenny."

“Now you’re getting the hang of it!”

"Life isn't fair, Milford, and that's what makes it fun."

"They're bred for their facial characteristics."

“Even my childhood dreams were of tax cuts.”

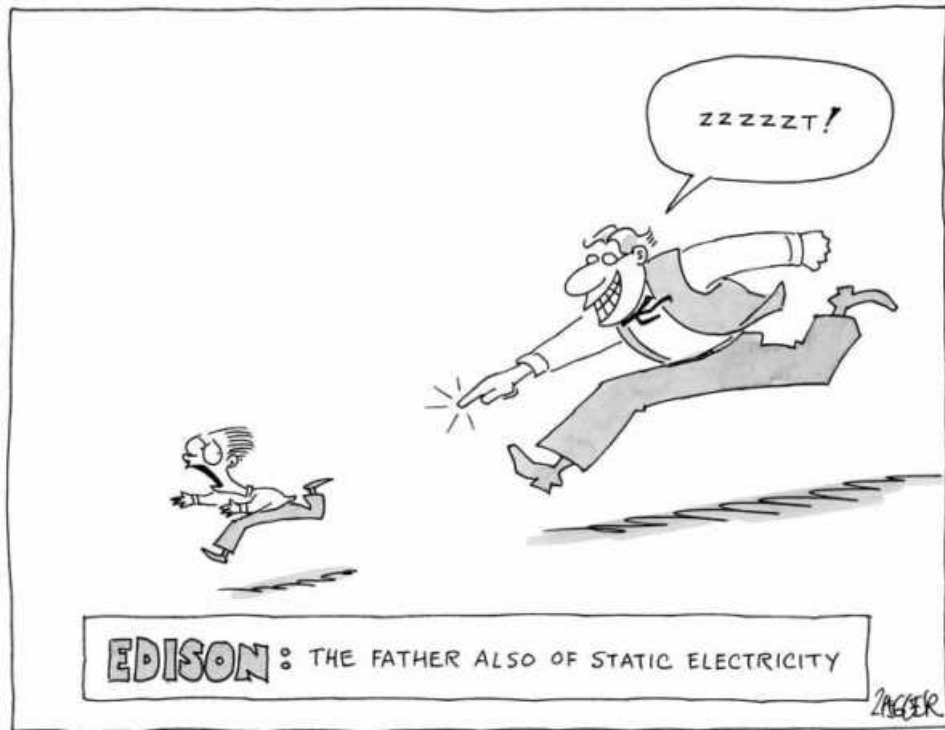

"You can always put it in your closet and leave it there."

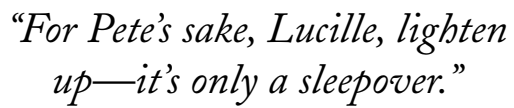

"Rufus, here, is the center of our life!"

"If I knew the meaning of life, would I be sitting in a cave in my underpants?"

"Your father loves me very much, in his own way, and I love your father very much, in my own way, and that's why we're getting a divorce."

“What if it turns out you’re not even a late bloomer?”

"I see that you work for one of those faith-based organizations."

"I love this town!"

“Kid, we’re up to here in bildungsromans.”

"Miss Ross, get me a motivational speaker."

"Why do you always get to be the gay icon?"

“No, leave it long in the back so I can look like a nincompoop.”

"I hardly think a transition team is necessary, Ed, in order to switch from beer to Scotch."

"Sometimes I don't read my mail."

"You should go and talk to Santa, dear, even though you feel he screwed you last year."

“Let’s face it: you and this organization have never been a good fit.”

“Isn’t it about time we tell the trophy wife about the trophy concubine?”

"We were into things, but now we're into experiences."

"You're a partner now, Cosgrove. Partners don't do self-deprecation."

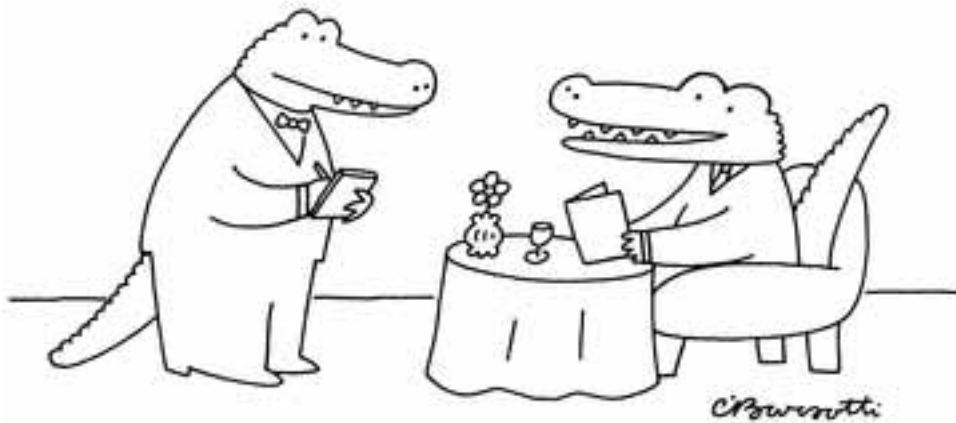

"They make me look hippy, right?"

"We really need to talk about our relationship, so I've booked us on a TV show."

THE HORN OF PAPER

"Poodle to be followed by hysterical blue-haired widow? Sounds good."

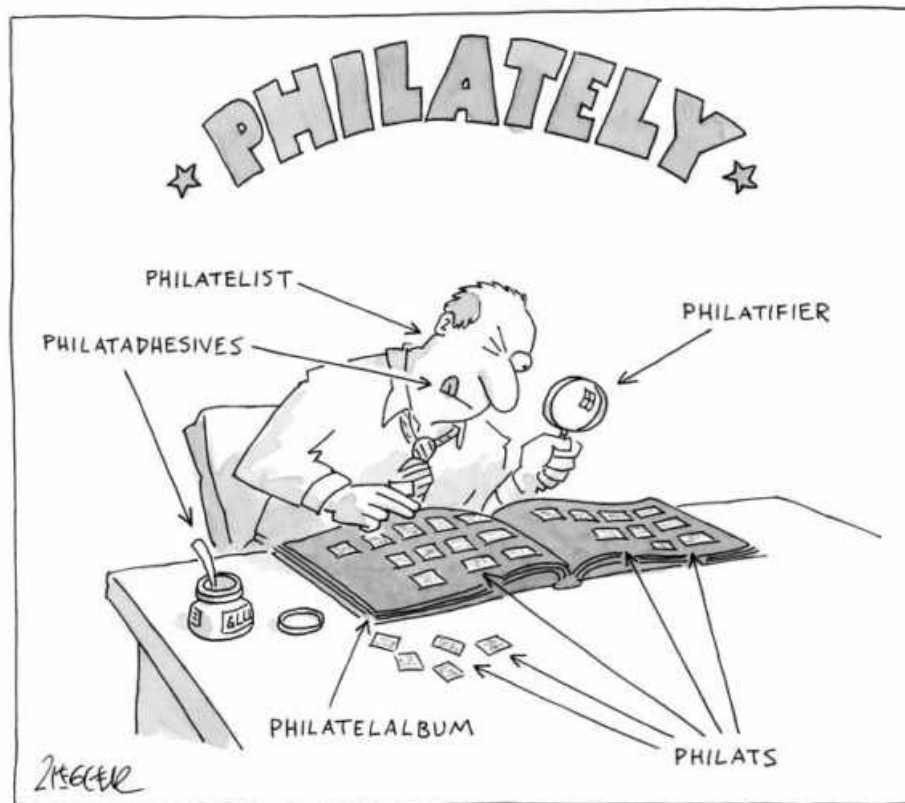

"Hey! Get back here!"

"I'm here to fix the lasagna."

“Sit down, Brad—I’ve got some character-building news for you.”

"Just what goes in these hot dogs, anyway?"

"01101001, 00111011, 00011010, but, but!"

"I suffer as much as you. I just don't let it interfere with my ability to make others suffer."

grace of God, goes somebody I fired."*

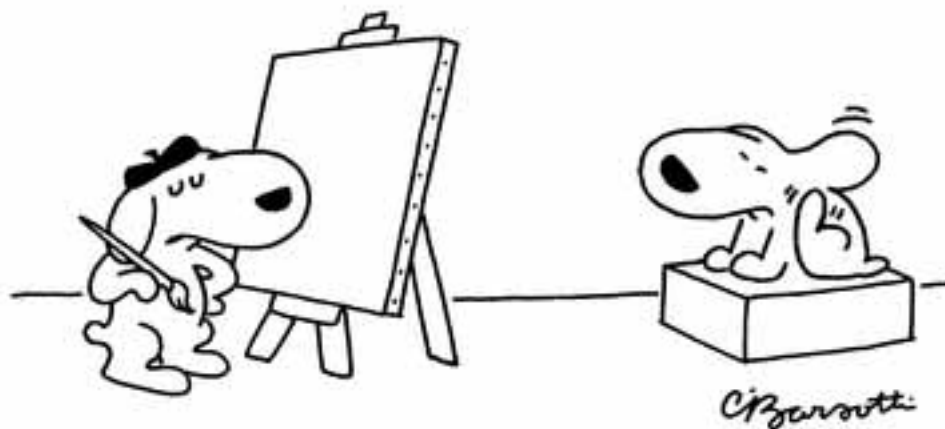

“Yes, as far as I know, songbirds write their own material.”

"The Internet startup had only enough cash for one more day. But, miraculously, the money lasted for eight days, until more venture capital could be raised."

"Whenever you're ready."

"An excellent question, Sylvia, and I thank you for the opportunity to use 'whilst' in my response."

“One thing’s for sure. We’ll have to mend our evil ways when Hillary shows up.”

"Now close your eyes and go to sleep or Daddy will read you more of his novel."

"Night before Christmas or no night before Christmas, I feel like stirring."
